

CyberReady Kids Mission

Would You Answer That?

A quick conversation to help kids recognize info bait.

CyberReadyKids.com

How to Use This Mission

---

This mission is a conversation starter.

Sit down with your kids and ask a few of the example questions.

Let them answer honestly — and see what comes up.

Then, talk about what's okay to answer and what's too personal to share with someone online.

You can use the printable activity on the next page to make it more fun or turn it into a quick quiz.

Would You Answer That?

Instructions

Look at the messages below. Mark each one with a  if it's safe to answer... or a  if it's personal and shouldn't be shared.

Message	Safe  or Not Safe
"What school do you go to?"
"Where do you live?"
"Send me a pic of you!"
"What's your favorite game?"
"What time are you usually online?"
"Are you home alone?"

Family Reflection

---

Talk It Out

- How do you tell if someone is really a kid online?
- What would you do if someone keeps asking personal stuff?
- What are some good ways to say “No thanks” or “I don’t want to share that”?

“You can tell they’re a kid by their name or avatar. Parents would be noobs.”

“Most of the time, I just decline them... but not always.”

🧐 Real quotes from real kids — but not always true. Even when they know the rules, they don’t always follow them. This week’s mission helps them think twice before assuming someone online is who they say they are — and opens the door for a real conversation.

Extra Credit – Safe Bio Challenge

---

Instructions

Ask your kids to rewrite their gaming, streaming, or social media bio.

The goal? Remove anything that shares personal info like name, school, city, age, or schedule.

Sample Safe Bio Rewrite

✗ BEFORE

Hi! I'm Emily. I live in Tampa and I'm online after school every day!

✓ AFTER

Gamer. Artist.
Explorer of new worlds.